

Kirsten Provence

Senior Manager of Supply Chain Security | Boeing

As the Senior Manager of Boeing's Supply Chain Security program, Kirsten leads the team responsible for maintaining the security of Boeing's global supply chains and ensuring Boeing's compliance with global supply chain security requirements. Additionally, Kirsten leads the S&FP Program Execution team which ensures the deployment of standardized services across the enterprise. Kirsten is also the executive strategy leader for Boeing's Security & Fire Protection organization and leads the development and delivery of the organization's strategic direction.

Kirsten has a degree in Political Science and a MBA in Business Administration, Global Management. Kirsten joined The Boeing Company in 2001 and in addition to her organizational duties, she serves on the Governance Board of the SCRLC and Chairs the OSAC Women in Security Benchmarking Subcommittee. Kirsten resides in Woodinville, Washington with her family and their 3-legged rescued Labrador retriever, Rebel.